Cardinals' Coaching Staff

WALLY LEMM, Head Coach

Low-pressure. . . Easy-going. . . Mild-mannered. . . Astute on defense. . . Respected by his players. . .

These phrases provide an apt description of Wally Lemm, new head coach of the St. Louis Cardinals who makes his National Football League debut as a head coach this year.

An assistant coach for the Cards under Ray Richards in 1956 and Frank (Pop) Ivy in 1959, the 42-year-old Lemm has been associated with the Big Red since 1942. At that time, he was a senior—and an English major—at Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis., where the Cards were training. At the same time, Jimmy Conzelman, now a St. Louis advertising executive, was the head coach of the Cards.

Lemm wanted to be a sports writer in those days, and planned to enroll as a graduate student at the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri.

But Conzelman, who led the Cardinals to their last two championships, the NFL crown in 1947 and the Western Division flag the following year, had a marked influence on young Lemm.

"After meeting Jimmy," said Lemm, "I changed my plans from wanting to be a sports writer and decided to go into coaching. Jimmy was a great coach and I was particularly impressed with his ability to handle men. I've tried to follow his pattern."

Lemm got his first chance to try coaching in 1945. He had spent two years on PT Boat 114 in the Southwest Pacific, then contracted malaria and was brought home and assigned to teach navigation at the Notre Dame midshipman school in 1945. He used his spare time to help Hugh Devore coach the Irish junior varsity.

That was the first of ten coaching jobs over the next 17 years—and Lemm has been a success at each, whether it was on a high school, college or professional level.

After being discharged as a Navy lieutenant in 1946, Lemm entered coaching as an assistant at Carroll for 1946 and 1947. His first head coaching job was at Waukesha (Wis.) High School in 1948.

Returning to college coaching, Lemm joined the staff at Lake Forest College as an assistant in 1949, and renewed his associations with the Cardinals when they moved their training site there in 1951. Lemm was promoted to head coach in 1952 and promptly won the College Conference of Illinois football title. Moving west after a second season at Lake Forest, Lemm took over at Montana State for 1954 and 1955, winning the Rocky Mountain Conference crown his first season.

He joined the Cards for his first tour of duty as an assistant under Richards in 1956, then returned to Lake Forest as head coach and athletic director in 1957. His team again won the College Conference of Illinois crown his first year and, after a second season there, he went back to the Cards under Ivy in 1959.

Lemm was an assistant coach with the Houston Oilers in 1960 and had apparently retired from coaching for 1961 to devote his full time to his sporting goods business in Libertyville, Ill. He is a partner there with Ike Craig, former basketball official who worked many games in the St. Louis area.

He was called to Houston as head coach midway in the 1961 season and his club responded with 10 straight victories and a championship.

As a Cardinal assistant in 1956, Lemm specialized in the defensive backfield, which was the best in the NFL. The Cards that year allowed opponents to complete only 44.9 per cent of their passes, best mark in the league. The Cards also intercepted 33 passes to pace the circuit and were second in two other vital categories—fewest touchdown passes, with eight, and least yards per attempted pass, with 5.3.

The crew-cut, stocky (5-10, 195) Lemm is the twentieth Cardinal head coach since 1921. He is married to the former Mary Ann Wilson and they have two children, Mike, 16, and Debbie, 12. The Lemms live in Lake Bluff, Ill.

CHUCK DRULIS, Assistant Coach

Senior member of the Cardinal coaching staff, Drulis begins his seventh season with the Big Red in 1962. A specialist in defensive line play, the 43-year-old Drulis came to the Cards in 1956, when Ray Richards was head coach, and stayed on under Frank (Pop) Ivy and Wally Lemm. Born in Girardville, Pa., Drulis was a standout lineman at Temple University, winning all-Eastern honors as a guard. He joined the Chicago Bears as a guard in 1942, then missed the 1943 and 1944 seasons because of service in World War II. Returning to the Bears midway in the 1945 campaign, he won all-Pro mention in 1947 and 1948. Drulis began his coaching career with the Green Bay Packers in 1951, and went to the Philadelphia Eagles in 1954 before coming to the Cardinals. His wife, Emma, is a talented artist and decorator, and they have two sons, Chuck Jr., 19, and Kerry 13. Chuck, Jr. is a sophomore at Duke University and an end on the football team.

RAY PROCHASKA, Assistant Coach

Now in his fifth season with the Cardinals, Prochaska (pronounced Pro-HAS-Ka) specializes in offensive line play for the Big Red. A native of Ulysses, Neb., the 42-year-old Prochaska was an end on the University of Nebraska's last Rose Bowl team that played in Pasadena on Jan. 1, 1941. He then played in the College All-Star Game, and spent the 1941 football season with the Cleveland Rams. Entering the Army, Prochaska rose to the rank of captain before being discharged in 1946. He entered coaching immediately, returning to Nebraska as end coach and remaining there until 1955, when he joined the Edmonton Eskimos as assistant to Frank (Pop) Ivy. Prochaska came to the Cardinals with Ivy in 1958, turning down the head job at Edmonton to remain with Ivy. Besides handling his coaching duties with the Cards, Prochaska is a deputy sheriff of Powder Mills Woods, the suburb of Belleville, Ill., where he lives with his wife, JoAnn, and their three children, Craig, 16, Mark, 9, and Judy, 7.

FRAN POLSFOOT, Assistant Coach

An all-pro end with the Cardinals in 1951, Polsfoot breaks into professional coaching with the Cardinals in 1962, and will be the end coach on Wally Lemm's staff. He comes to the Big Red after five seasons as head coach and athletic director at Wisconsin State College, River Falls, Wis. A native of Montesano, Wash., the 35-year-old Polsfoot earned all-Coast mention as a stand-out end at Washington State College, and also set a conference high hurdles mark with a 14.4 clocking. He joined the Cards in 1950 and promptly earned a starting berth, catching 38 passes for 653 yards and six touchdowns. In 1951, he ranked third in the National Football League on 57 catches for 796 yards, and was named to the Pro Bowl. His 57 receptions was a Cardinal record which stood until Sonny Randle caught 62 in 1960.

Polsfoot brought his professional career to a close with the Washington Redskins in 1953, then joined the Wisconsin State staff as an assistant coach in 1954, moving to the head job in 1957. He and his wife, Mary, have two children, Sally 7, and Tommy, 4.

DON SHROYER, Assistant Coach

A highly successful coach for six seasons at Millikin University, Decatur, Ill., Shroyer makes his professional debut with the 1962 Cardinals, and will specialize in offensive backfield work.

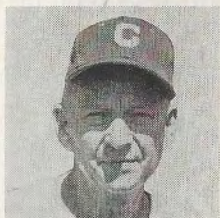

The 36-year-old Shroyer, a native of Lovington, Ill., served for two years in the Marine Corps, then was an outstanding football and track star at Millikin. He won letters in football and two in track, and was captain of the football team. He began coaching at Carmi High School, Carmi, Ill., and had top-flight teams there for five years before moving to Millikin. His Big Blue teams had a 29-18-1 record, climaxed by the 1961 club which was unbeaten in an eight-game campaign. While serving as head coach, Shroyer also found time to earn a master's degree in education. He and his wife, Marilyn, have two children, Gail, 9, and Doug, 6.

EMMETT (ABE) STUBER, Talent Scout

Veteran football man has been connected with the sport for 32 years in college and pro ranks, and now spends much of the year on the road searching for new talent for the Cardinals.

A native Missourian who lives in Piedmont, Mo., Stuber was the University of Missouri quarterback in 1924-26. His first head coaching job was at Southeast Missouri State, in Cape Girardeau, where he coached football, track and basketball for 16 years. He moved to Iowa State as head man in 1947, then shifted to Washington State as an assistant coach in 1954. Entering the pro ranks in 1955, Stuber spent a season with the Philadelphia Eagles and one with the Green Bay Packers, then dropped out of football for a year before joining the Cardinals, then in Chicago, in 1958. He re-entered private business in 1959, but came back to the Cards in 1960. The 58-year-old Stuber has four grandchildren, two by his son, Dick, a former college quarterback at Iowa State and Missouri, and two by his daughter, Mrs. Martha Griffith.

JACK ROCKWELL, Trainer

Now in his third season with the Cardinals, this stocky native of Seattle is an important cog in the Big Red welfare, treating the players' ailments, both real and imagined. Talented trainer held a similar post at the University of Colorado for seven years before coming to the Cards, also was a trainer for the United States basketball team which toured Russia in 1958. The 36-year-old Rockwell also has worked for the Washington State Rehabilitation Center as a therapist, and was a trainer for the Bremerton, Wash., minor league baseball team. Educated at the University of Kansas, Rockwell is a year-round resident of St. Louis with his wife, Jean, and their two sons, Kerry, 11, and Kevin, 4.

WHITEY ZIMMERMAN, Equipment Manager

A native St. Louisan who spent the last seven years on the suburban Jennings police force comes to take over this post with the Cardinals. Whitey remembers some of St. Louis' baseball glory days. He was a clubhouse helper for the old St. Louis Browns in 1943 and 1944, celebrating the club's only American League pennant the latter year, then was batboy for the next three years. He was American League visiting team clubhouse man in 1948. Now 33, he and his wife, Sheila, have three children, sons Jerry, 10, and Larry, 4, and daughter, Terry, 5.

Cardinal History

They got their name from some faded jerseys. They once staked their entire future on a single game. They are a charter member of the National Football League and the first team to go out of town to train. They boasted the famous "Dream Backfield," as legendary a group of football players as ever was assembled.

That's the St. Louis Football Cardinals.

Organized by the late Chris O'Brien as the Morgan Athletic Club, in 1898, the team was playing at 61st and Racine Streets on the south side of Chicago when O'Brien was offered a bargain on some jerseys.

They had belonged to the University of Chicago, but the Maroon had faded to what O'Brien described as Cardinal—and they've been the Cardinals ever since.

O'Brien had acquired the great John (Paddy) Driscoll when he staked his franchise on a game. It was in 1920, and a team known as the Chicago Tigers was battling the Cardinals for supremacy in Chicago. O'Brien challenged the Tigers, with the stakes to be the loser's franchise as a professional team. Driscoll ran 40 yards for the game's only touchdown in a 6-3 victory for the Big Red, and the Cardinals were the only team in town.

The Cardinals won their first National Football League championship in 1925, when the league boasted 20 teams and the Cards had such stars as Driscoll, Wilfrid Smith, Roger Kiley, Eddie Anderson, Herb Blumer, Ralph Claypool, Harold Erickson, Fred Gillies and Arnold McInerney.

In 1929, Dr. David J. Jones purchased the Cards from O'Brien, named Ernie Nevers as head coach and established a precedent by taking the team to Coldwater, Mich., to train.

Nevers had only a 6-6-1 season as a head coach, but the all-time Stanford great set an NFL record on Nov. 28, 1929, that still stands. On that Thanksgiving Day, Nevers scored six touchdowns and kicked four extra points for a one-man total of 40 points as the Cards humbled the Bears, 40-6. No one has ever scored more points in a single game.

The Cardinals had their troubles throughout the 1930's, as ownership changed hands. Charles W. Bidwill bought the club from Dr. Jones on Oct. 24, 1933. Bidwill had a dream, a dream of a championship, and through the years the dream remained.

It began to be realized at the 1939 NFL draft meeting when Bidwill selected a hard-running halfback from the University of Pittsburgh, Marshall Goldberg. Two years later, he picked a cool, hard-throwing quarterback from Missouri, Paul Christman.

In 1944, the Cards drafted a hard-nosed fullback from Wisconsin named Marlin Harder, but no one called him anything but Pat. And, a year later, the Big Red picked the all-purpose speedster from Georgia, Charley Trippi.

Goldberg, Christman and Harder played together in 1946. When Trippi signed to play in 1947, Bidwill said, "This will complete my Dream Backfield."

Unfortunately, the owner never saw his dream come true. He died on April 19, 1947, but the 1947 Cards, coached by Jim Conzelman, were a terror to the NFL.

They swarmed over the Western Division, to which they then belonged, winning nine and losing three, then bumped the Philadelphia Eagles, 28-21, in the title game. Trippi and rookie Elmer (Bud) Angsman ran wild that day. Trippi dashed 75 yards with a punt return, still the longest return in an NFL playoff, for one score, and sped 44 from scrimmage for another. Angsman twice went 70 yards on touchdown runs.

The "Dream Backfield" got a lot of the plaudits, but that was a tough, fast and rugged team. It included a pair of great ends in Mal Kutner and Billy Dewell, and such other outstanding linemen as Buster Ramsey, Stan Mauldin, Plato Andros, Vince Banonis and others.

A year later, the Cards won 11 games and lost only one to again capture the Western Division title, but in a Philadelphia blizzard, Steve Van Buren scored a touchdown as the Eagles beat the Big Red, 7-0.

Both the 1947 and 1948 clubs were high-scoring, exciting outfits. Angsman moved ahead of Goldberg at right half in 1948 and the latter became one of the league's outstanding defensive backs. The 1948 Cardinals piled up such scores as 63-35 over the Giants, 24-7 over Pittsburgh, 56-20 over Detroit and 42-7 over Green Bay.

There have been more lean years than fat ones since then for the Cardinals, but a new era began in 1960 when the club moved its home base to St. Louis.

Frank (Pop) Ivy, who came to the Cards as head coach in 1958, started a rebuilding program that produced a pair of .500 seasons in 1960 and 1961. Ivy then resigned, and has been succeeded by Wally Lemm. Operation of the club now rests in the hands of Charles Bidwill's sons—Charles Jr., usually known as Stormy, and William—and the hopes for the future are bright.
